

Zachary Zwald, 2007-08 Post-Doctoral Fellow at the Mershon Center for International Security Studies, speaks on "Solving an Imaginary Problem: Why 'Should' Determines 'Can' on U.S. National Missile Defense" on January 17, 2008, at the Mershon Center.

Zachary Zwald (center), 2007-08 Post-Doctoral Fellow at the Mershon Center, speaks with (left to right) Ted Hopf, Associate Professor of Political Science; John Mueller, Woody Hayes Chair of National Security Studies; and Richard Herrmann, Director of the Mershon Center, after Zwald's talk on January 17, 2008.